- Spreads widened 4bp on the week, despite risk on in equities and CDS. Heavy supply was a factor, with high rated names repricing on Alphabet and Visa bringing rare AA corporate paper.
- Continued optimism on US-China relations, and trade talks in general, underpinned the ongoing recovery in risk assets.
- Fund flows came in positive for ERU IG and HY. The standout was US HY with more than $3bn in inflows.
- Despite the May Day holiday, it was the busiest primary week of the year with €26bn of supply. Surveys expect a more moderate week ahead.

MNI Credit Weekly - 02 May 2025

Developed Markets and Policy Summary

Tariff uncertainty continued to linger this week, although slightly increased odds of a Sino-U.S. discussion on the matter, coupled with continued advances in U.S. trade talks with the likes of India and Japan, fed into the latest extension of the equity market recovery. Various global equity benchmarks have moved back to levels not seen since Trump's "Liberation Day" announcements.

We stress that few trade agreements signed off yet, with risks surrounding the discussions. Most notably, China continues to outline pre-requisites (such as the U.S. adopting a more respectful approach), while Japan pointed to the potential weaponisation of its U.S. Treasury holdings.

Feedthrough for Fed policy remains uncertain, with both hawkish and dovish arguments presented. There is worry that central banks will be slow to react to recent developments, with policy mistakes from the COVID era etched in many memories. Comments from Fed Chair Powell's potential successors also shaped discussions.

Data seen through the early part of Thursday morning helped markets price in over 100bp of Fed cuts through year-end at one stage, before a less-stagflationary-than-expected (but still overall negative) ISM manufacturing survey and mixed NFP report countered the dovish move. Less than 90bp of cuts are now through year-end.

The head of the ISM manufacturing survey continued to point to downside risks stemming from President Trump's policy choices. The Chair of the White House Council of Economic Advisers, Stephen Miran, pushed back against those suggestions, via an exclusive interview with MNI. He also played down the idea of a Mar-a-Lago accord or forced extension of U.S. debt holdings.

European CPI data provided a modest upside surprise, although many pointed to an Easter-driven bump in prices and expect the disinflationary trend to continue. ECB pricing is little changed on the week, with December meeting pricing generally oscillating between 60-70bp of easing. Our sources pointed to a lively debate at the Bank's June meeting, although they expect a cut to be delivered.

The risk of fiscal disappointment also remains a topic of discussion in Europe.

There was little in the way of UK-specific drivers to move GBP markets, with much focus centred on next week's BoE decision and the latest political developments (ReformUK's local and by-election performance is unlikely to move the needle at this stage).

Our DM team outlined some potential dovish tweaks to the BoE's guidance. A change in tone may come as soon as next week.

Cross-market inputs mean that dovish expressions that were previously identified by our DM team (GBP 1y1y & SONIA M5/M6 flatteners) performed well, although the hawkish adjustment in USD rates ahead of the weekend saw those moves trimmed.

Further out, 2-Year gilt yields hit the lowest level of '25, although 10s failed to do the same. Gilt curves were slightly steeper on the week but failed to test year-to-date highs.

Autos: Week in Review

Tariff reprieves, avoiding stacking and allowing for parts exemption for US assembled vehicles, were confirmed. Volkswagen's guidance remains ex-tariff, while Stellantis, Mercedes, Volvo and Harley withdrew theirs. GM is the only OEM so far to give an outlook reflecting tariffs and spreads outperformed slightly.

- The sector underperformed at +7 versus the index at +4. That was despite some tariff reprieve, with earnings reports generally skewing bearish.
- GM reported in-line 1Q results and delayed its earnings call by three days to update for the latest tariff developments. It is the only OEM to have given guidance including tariffs; EBIT outlook was cut by 22%. FCF impact is offset by suspending buybacks.
- Following preliminaries, Volkswagen results were all about the guidance. That was seen trending towards the low end of the range yet still does not reflect tariff impact.
- Stellantis posted in-line revenue, with some early signs of recovery. It too withdrew guidance.
- Mercedes-Benz also withdrew guidance, along with a small 1Q miss. It currently sees 200-300bp margin impact with highly uncertain indirect impact.
- Volvo Car reported a sizeable EBIT miss due to FX impact and pricing hit by inventory reductions. Guidance was withdrawn on tariff uncertainty. It indicated 1-2% drag on EBIT margins.
- Magna had a weak 1Q as margin pressure builds. Guidance suggests direct tariff mitigation, but indirect effects remain a risk. Moody's joined S&P on negative outlook; EBIT margin thresholds appear challenging.
- Harley-Davidson showed better-than-feared margins, driving an EBIT beat despite missing on revenue. It was another to withdraw guidance; pre-mitigation tariff impact looked hefty.
- Following weak preliminary figures, Traton confirmed guidance with its results, but excluded tariff impact.
- Valeo reported in-line sales and confirmed FY guidance, relying on reducing costs.
- Fitch downgraded Nissan to BB with outlook negative following the latest profit warning.

Industrials: Week in Review

- The Verallia takeover looks ever more likely with BPIfrance to tender ~50% of its holding. That suggest no French government objections to us.
- CNH Industrial EBIT missed badly, FY guidance was cut and it's facing increasing downgrade risk.
- K+S reported strong EBITDA on rising potash prices, raising guidance. Air Products posted a marginal EBITDA miss and lowered FY EPS guidance. Guidance was unchanged, but with caution on indirect impact which will be updated post 2Q. PPG firmly beat EBITDA consensus thanks to firm margins. BASF, Linde and DSM-Firmenich results were in-line.
- Honeywell 1Q results were in-line. FY25 guidance showed minimal tariff impact. Parker-Hannifin reported a marginal beat and tweaked guidance. Eaton posted in-line EBIT.
- SIG numbers showed YoY improvement but missed consensus. Smurfit Westrock results were in-line. Amcor reported a miss on demand weakness.

- Atlas Copco had a slight EBITDA miss and downgraded its customer activity expectations. KION reported a marginal beat and confirmed FY outlook. Knorr-Bremse results were in-line.
- Timken results were in-line. It took small negative revisions to FCF and margin guidance on tariffs. Carrier Global reported a strong beat, but only marginally increased guidance.
- Veralto posted an EBIT beat, but widened margin growth range guidance to the downside.
- ArcelorMittal reported in-line results. Guidance was confirmed but with a cautious outlook.

TMT: Week In Review

- On ratings, Fitch moved SES to outlook negative (now Baa3[N]/BBB[N]) and affirmed Telekom Austria at A- (outlook left positive) while Moody's upgraded Netflix to A3 (outlook left positive (now A3[P])/A) in line with our expectation.
- Busiest supply week in a long time with €12.4bn supplied by Alphabet, Fiserv and Visa; Alphabet came with NICs of 2-12bp with the largest NIC lines tightening since though three of the five lines widened. Visa came with NICs of 0-5bp with each line 4-5bps tighter. Fiserv IPTs and FTs came wider than we had expected though the lines have been steady; the curve is one of the steeper in the fintech space despite what we view as a steady credit profile.
- Lots of earnings this week including from Apple (Neutral), London Stock Exchange Group (Neutral), Mastercard (Neutral), Microsoft (Neutral), SES (Slight Pos), Teleperformance (Neutral), American Tower (Neutral), Capgemini (Neutral), Corning (Slight Pos), Universal Music Group (Positive), Visa (Neutral), Deutsche Boerse (Slight Neg).
- On spreads; only PRXNA, NEXIIM and SES managed to stay tighter. Some large US names underperformed including the three telcos, IBM, Corning as well as high beta names like WBD (no news) and WLNFP (ditched guidance at earnings).

Healthcare: Week in Review

4 bps wider on average this week – in line with the overall market. We had earnings from eight companies. Becton Dickinson and Eli Lilly were the worst performing equities (-17% and -11%) with Novo Nordisk and Smith & Nephew posting gains of 13% and 10% respectively.

- Becton Dickinson had reasonably solid quarterly numbers with 6.0% growth at constant currency. But guidance was light with Organic revenue expected to grow by just 3.0% to 3.5%: 1% below previous guidance. This is not terrible for bondholders particularly as the company reiterated its intention to reduce leverage from 2.9x to 2.5x (no timeframe) but the equity market was unimpressed. We would caution that the company may be forced to be more friendly to shareholders given the fall. Bonds +6 weaker on the week although tighter by 2bps immediately after results.
- Eli Lilly also fell post numbers but mainly because it has a high P/E ratio that requires a steady stream of good news. Unfortunately, the CVS chain of pharmacies removed Zepbound from its favoured list and included Wegovy (Novo Nordisk).
- Smith & Nephew had revenue up +3.1% and guided to +5% for full year. SNLN 29s are now 20bps tighter year-to-date. The company has pressure from Cevian Capital to improve performance.

Property: Week in Review

The top performing sector this week. Real Estate managed a marginal gain vs a +4bp widening for the rest of the IG universe.

- Cofinimmo was the stand-out performer with COFBBB 0.875 30 -35bps tighter on the week following an all-share merger approach from Aedifica. AEDBB was also better: 31s -13bps as the combined entity would benefit from scale and diversification. COFBBB bonds do have a CoC Put but would require the rating to be cut to High Yield to trigger.
- AroundTown and GrandCity were cut by S&P with ARNDTN Hybrids dropping into High Yield. S&P was seen as being somewhat behind the curve as there are tentative signs of improvement in the German Real Estate market. The bonds were not dramatically wider.
- CityCon had a strong week but bear in mind the CITCON 1.625 25 are still +60bp ytd and +114bps off March tight

Hybrids: Week in Review

- Mobico – what a difference a week makes. Perps are closing the week 9.25 pts below the pre-US Bus sale level. Bonds are now yielding 10.6% to the Second Reset Date in Feb '31. We are hearing that some senior bond holders are considering challenging the US Bus sale as an Event of Default though with the deal due to close in Q3 it will be a while before anything develops here. Perps do not have the same EOD language.
- SES was moved to Negative Outlook by Fitch. Bonds were steady. The equity has been drifting lower from March highs.
- Longer dated Volkswagen Call29 and Call31 were just over 1pt lower on the week. The senior curve was +8bps wider on average having reported on 29th.
- Harbour Energy bought a €900m NC5.25 @6.125% We thought that this was right on FV. With little upside bonds gave up 1pt in secondary. OPEC is meeting over the weekend which saw Brent fall on Friday and the equity give back some gains. TTF futures are up 4% on the week which may help. The tender on the HBRLN 2.4985% Call26 closes 8th May which may see some cash come back into the name.

Consumer & Transport: Week in Review

We are not sure we've ever seen Coca-Cola (KO) move more than VFC on risk-off - but that's what played out this week. Technicals likely behind it: two large high-grade prints (Visa, Alphabet) soaking up demand. But it leaves questionable RV: can 16y Coca-Cola Europacific (the bottler) really trade -10bps inside partial owner Coca-Cola? Elsewhere, Whirlpool's +40bp move on a junking is another friendly reminder that near-term ratings catalysts can matter more than earnings trajectory. Earnings slow down next week with Elis, Pandora, Flutter and IHG of note. But we still expect volatility from ratings, supply, and Mobico.

- Mobico reports FY results with the normal slew of one-off adjustments that leave earnings lacklustre and us still seeing only rating downside (at Fitch). Senior bonds finally reacted, as equities showed no signs of reversing a >40% drawdown. We flagged later in the week that the potential for an Event of Default is real – we see conditions met under the cessation of business clause, which could force par redemption on the £28s and €31s. Mobico, however, does not have enough cash to cover both and terms of the undrawn revolver (e.g. cross-default) are unclear.
- Kraft Heinz: sales still weak, but guidance calls for improvement. Ratings headroom may buy time, but we continue to see US-heavy F&B as uninteresting vs. broader staples.
- LVMH pays an 8bp NIC and continues the trend of steepening its curve on supply. In line with our view, only the 4y tightened while the 7y weakened further. It trades well wide of fundamentals – we see this 'Arnault discount' as warranted.
- Couche-Tard finally signs an NDA with 7&i, gaining access to financials. It may have agreed to tone down public pressure in return.
- Flutter closes on Snai. There is some beta to earnings next week given it has begun equity payouts and was holding leverage outside target. We are expecting supply, currency uncertain.
- Lufthansa opened airline earnings hiding continuing weakness on costs with positive macro backdrop. It says cost pressures will ease in 2H.
- Finnair faces more industrial action. It says some agreements have been struck, but impact on earnings still worsening. Risk skewed negative until fully resolved.
- DSV 1Q results are fine as it moves into the Schenker integration period. Management hints at more refi supply, but likely size is not of concern. Comments on balance sheet governance remain positive.
- Woolworths: earnings fine but more importantly the political catalyst looks favourable ahead of the weekend election. We again see value on the 28s and some on the new 32s.
- Primary (NIC in brackets): Carrefour 4yr (+4), LVMH 3.9yr (+8), 6.9yr (+8), Tesco 7y (0), Aeroporti di Roma 7.1y (+3)
- Whirlpool: Both S&P and Moody's cut to junk. Moody's holds a negative outlook. We've flagged concerns for a while.
- Altria: Moody's lifts negative outlook and stabilises ratings.
- AB-InBev: Moody's follows S&P and moves to positive outlook.

Fund Flows

For the week ending Wednesday:

- EUR-IG inflows firmed up to over >$0.5b while EUR-HY turned from mild outflows to small inflows. USD-IG saw only small outflow after last week's circa $2b outflow, while USD-HY reversed to very firm inflows of over $3b. More timely US ETF flows have reversed towards inflows for IG.
- US Treasuries had their largest outflow since December 2023 at -$4.4b.
- Weakness in US equities picked up pace as it saw a circa $9b outflow. Europe remained firm on $3b of inflows. China was also weak at over $3b outflow dragging EM equities to net outflows.

Supply Expectations

- Expectations for all publicly syndicated deals (IG/HY EUR/GBP Covered/Credit/SSA) for next week are higher (as per Bloomberg's primary survey).
- The average response for Corps for next week is €7.5-11.5bn (vs. €5.5-8.0bn for this week) while for FIG it's €8.5-13.0bn (vs €6.5-11.0bn for this week).
